WEEKLY NEWSLETTER

Next week is Read Across America Week. This is an annual event created by the National Education Association that is celebrated in early March to promote the joy of reading and encourage children and young adults to develop a lifelong love for books. This week coincides with the birthday of Dr. Seuss, a beloved author whose works have shaped generations of readers. Here at LSUS we celebrate by participating in fun dress up or themed days and reading activities. The aim is to inspire students to explore new stories, develop literacy skills, and recognize the power of reading to foster imagination and learning. I encourage not only the students, but also the adults to get out there and READ! What's your favorite book?

Encouragement Found in Scriptures:

"In houses and streets, in cities and towns, The people were lost, with darkness all 'round. Then Jesus spoke up, his voice clear as a bell, 'I am the light of the world!' he surely did tell.

So listen up, dear friends, and hear me well, Follow me, and in darkness you'll no longer dwell. With me by your side, you'll never go astray, For I am the light that shows you the way."

— John 8:12 reimagined in the style of Dr. Seuss
